New Librarian August 2014 – Kevin Mulhall:
Kevin is somewhat familiar with Antioch College after he spent seven years on campus as an adjunct professor of music until 2008 and teaching MLIS practicum and post-practicum in 2012. Mulhall received his masters in library and information science from Kent State University in 2012, and holds another master in music from the Purchase College Conservatory. Mulhall joins the Olive Kettering Library staff from the Washington-Centerville Public Library in Centerville, Ohio, where he has served as an adult services librarian since February 2012.

The Olive Kettering Library provides a firm foundation for development of a modern college library to support the mission of the new Antioch College. Students use the library to consult or check out an array of research materials; find a quiet corner to study; interact with faculty, staff, or other students; attend an instruction session; and enjoy the services of a robust online collection of resources made available through strong library consortium relationships.
